Mr. Odwe has excellent skills in facilitating community training, mobilization, leadership and good at policy analysis and advocacy. Has proven experience in modern research methodologies using qualitative and quantitative tools.

I am inspired to work in health sector to influence policies because of my passion for advocating for health rights of the poor and marginalized groups in Uganda. "I am very passionate about advocacy especially for the rights of the marginalized people in my society. Working with AGHA has given me a platform to advocate for the health rights of the marginalized groups such as women, children, People with Disabilities (PWDs), people living with HIV/AIDS and the elderly."

Through my social accountability and community monitoring undertakings, I have been able to strengthen capacity of CSOs at national and district levels on policy analysis, advocacy and applied budget work to influence public policy in health to improve health outcomes of the vulnerable communities in Uganda.
